What is this about?

Issue: we don’t exactly know how companies like Equifax calculate our credit scores.

We want to understand users’ willingness to share personal data in an effort to collectively audit credit scoring algorithms and systems.

What are we doing to help?

- Developing a website to assist with data donation
- Users can donate several different types of data used for alternative credit scoring
- Site guides users through accessing and downloading data
- Users may opt in and out of donating each data type
- Data eventually gets uploaded to our servers
